

Metal can be bent and shaped because the layers of atoms in the metal structure can slide easily over each other.