

Atoms of elements in the same period of the Periodic Table have the same number of electrons in their outer shell.