

What would you see happening at the cathode and anode during the purification of copper?