

Which of the following statements explains why the rate of a chemical reaction increases when a powdered form of reactant is used instead of lumps?