

Diamond and water both have covalent bonds.

Why is the melting point of diamond higher than the melting point of water?